

We know that owning a solar system is just a small step towards reducing emissions. We also know that the NSW renewable energy policy is compromising and limited. For example there has been a 'multiplier' policy that applies to the renewable energy installed in NSW so that the energy counts for an inflated amount (5 times as much) under the Renewable Energy Target. That's right – some of NSW's climate policy is literally hot air! We are sceptical about this policy and are happy to see its end as the multiplier is phased out.

A solar system at Jura is only a step, but nonetheless a valuable step, in transitioning society towards principles like sustainability and decentralised collectivism. We are opposed to capitalist, state-run systems of carbon trading - they cannot solve the climate crisis and are deeply unjust. Instead, we invite you to join us to support and get involved in grassroots organising that will take us towards justice on climate change. One great way you could do this is to come along to the community-run 'Climate Action Summit 2011: From the ground up'. It's in Melbourne from 9th to 11th April. If you'd like to travel down with friendly folks from Jura, just get in touch.

We need to raise at least $2000 to put solar panels on our roof. (If we raise more, we will get a larger system.) Every donation large or small is appreciated. Each person who donates $50 or more will receive a gift pack with political goodies in it. Please email us (jura@jura.org.au) with your address after you have made the donation.

Community-owned renewable energy systems are part of the solution to the climate crisis. Have you ever wanted to put solar panels on your roof but can't afford it? Here's a chance to join with others to own a community-controlled solar power system...

Help make Jura solar-powered

The Jura Collective wants to install a grid-connected solar panel system on our roof, but we need your help to do it. This will reduce carbon pollution and show that sustainable, decentralised, community-owned energy is possible. It will also reduce our electricity bills - making Jura more stable and able to focus on grassroots political organising. Please make a donation.

Jura Books is a community-owned, not-for-profit, anarchist bookshop, library and organising space. We stock thousands of books you won't find anywhere else, including anarchist, enviro, feminist, worker, anti-racist and more. We host regular political talks, films, gigs, and a food buyer's co-operative.
